BIOFISICA & WOUNDS UK LAUNCHES TRAINING PROGRAMME FOR WOUND CARE CLINICIANS

Biofisica and its communication partner Wounds UK are launching a series of one day workshops across England outlining the role of bio-electric currents in wound healing. This new treatment modality is now commercially available as POSiFECT®.

Delegates will be introduced to this innovative technology, will see the latest results of a multi-centre programme and hear how it can facilitate cost-effective healing. Clinicians who see difficult to heal wounds, and managers involved in the commissioning or procurement of wound care services have been invited to attend. Further information is available at www.biofisica.com.

Speakers include: John Timmons (TVN Grampian Acute Trust and Clinical Manager Wounds UK) and Martyn Butcher (Clinical Advisor Biofisica).

About POSiFECT®

POSiFECT® is the first medical device available that combines two technologies: moist wound-care dressing and electrical stimulation, in a fully disposable, easy-to-use, sterile dressing that facilitates the normal healing process. Clinical research has shown that POSiFECT® accelerates healing in difficult to heal or non-healing chronic wounds.

POSiFECT® Bio-Electric Stimulation Therapy was launched in early 2007 and has now been used by more than 30 clinicians throughout the United Kingdom.

About Biofisica

Biofisica Inc., (www.biofisica.com) is a high tech wound care company that was founded Atlanta, Georgia (USA) in 2000 to develop new solutions within the tissue engineering specifically address chronic wound healing. The company also has offices in Hampshire in United Kingdom.

Biofisica, which received CE Mark approval for POSiFECT® RD in late 2006, is currently working with UK's Drug Tariff to enable this technology to be more widely available. Biofisica has filed an application for 510(k) approval with the FDA to receive clearance to market its products in the United States. The product is not yet available in the U.S.

About WOUNDS UK

Wounds UK is the only dedicated wounds communication company in the UK and has a strong commitment to providing affordable education. "We are delighted to be so closely involved in this pioneering technology - a hugely exciting opportunity for professionals in Wound Healing & Management in wound care" said Edward Rusling, Business Director of Wound UK.
